“ Dear Johnson Brothers and Families, I read of your Mom's death in the paper today. I'm sorry for your loss. I have many warm memories of her kindness and interest and of the times spent with all of you. Lillian Hellman once wrote about living on after Dashiell Hammett's death, and I paraphrase inserting Edie's mother title -- 'I still miss Mom and that is as it should be. I laugh at what she did say, amuse myself with what she might have said, and sometimes get angry that she's still dictating all the rules.' Our loved ones may die, but they do live on in our hearts and minds. Godspeed, Edie.
Fondly, Diane
